A Life Lesson

Writing about wives is like tip-toeing through a mine field. A long tail cat in a room full of rocking chairs has nothing on me.

But this story is just too tempting a subject. At the first tournament I organized and ran, I had a team with at least half a dozen wives drinking cognac in the stands screaming obscenities in this order: first at the poor umpire, then at the other team who hadn't brought any wives to defend them; next at their own oblivious husbands who seemed to be quite used to it, and then finally they turned on each other because one of them held her pet cat in her lap, and another one had a dog on a dropped leash that chased the cat onto the field.

When the umpire tried to grab the dog, it bit him on the thigh.

As tournament director, it was my job to do something. I'd rather face down Clint Eastwood than six drunk wives. But I took a breath and marched over to the biggest one. I thought I saw a tattoo of Attila the Hun on her bicep.

I knew that if I said the wrong thing, fire would ignite the alcohol in her throat and she would spew flames at me with medieval intentions. So I swallowed hard and said with all the courage I could muster:

10 To Be Inducted Into HOF

Softball News Report

The National Senior Softball Hall of Fame class of 2016 has been announced and those to be inducted in Las Vegas during the World Masters Championships include some of the most well-known participants in the sport.

Included in the class are the founder of the first 85 team in the sport (Hugh Brotherton), one of the key Las Vegas Senior Softball Association organizers of the World Masters Championships (Bob Gregorich), and one of the leading players in the Northeast and a SSUSA National director (Michael Boone).

In total, five players, one manager and four pioneers in the sport will be inducted at the WMC this year.

Those honored include:

Hugh Brotherton Pioneer Player

Senior Softball USA chief executive officer Terry Hennessy calls Brotherton "a true pioneer in our sport, an excellent player and manager – and a wonderful ambassador for all of us." Here's what many others said of Brotherton:

"When Hugh comes to the ballpark, he comes with unbridled enthusiasm, a positive attitude, and ready to give 100 percent to the team." – Jack Hudson

"Hugh has been an outstanding member of The Center for Sight team for years – on and off the field." – Norman Ellis

"Hugh has the most amazing spirit and a pure love of the game. His career in softball speaks for itself, winning multiple national and world championships." – Fran Dowell

"He hits a long ball, runs well, and plays his defensive position well. In addition, he does a super job of pitching." – Hal Olver

Mike Trusty Manager

The Riverside, Calif., resident has been in senior softball for 12 years and has won 19 world or national championships. He manages Summy's 55, a Major Plus team that won the SSUSA Triple Crown. It was his second Triple Crown.

Ken Lipinski said that

"Mike's on field managerial abilities start with his eye for recognizing talent. His success has been proven by bringing together such talent, mixed personalities and coaching them to act like a team, play like a team and win like a team. Mike is known and respected not only by his team but throughout the country as a class act and standup guy who loves this sport."

Michael P. Boone Player

The Middlesex, N.J., resident has played senior softball for 10 years starting with Promotion Sportswear before creating Sweet Construction Co. out of New Jersey at the Major level.

H.P. "Dutch" Detwiler Jr., 2010 NSSHOF Inductee, says "Mike's performance in Senior Softball has been exceptional in all areas and he is one of the most recognized players on and off the field."

David Barnes, NSSHOF Class of 2013 goes on to say, Michael is an outstanding hitter and gifted middle infielder which contributes to his team's success.

Pre-Swing Motion Creates Added Bat Speed

By Art Eversole

Here's a quick tip for improving your hitting before you step into the batter's box: Add a pre-swing action so the bat will feel lighter allowing you to swing faster, be able to wait longer, and be quicker to the ball with more power.

So what makes the bat feel heavy and to swing slower? As we know the majority of the bat's weight is in the barrel region. The farther the bat barrel is away from your hands, the heavier the bat will feel.

One way to make the bat feel heavy is to place it straight back behind your head in a level position. Don't let the bat rest on the shoulder when assuming your ready position to hit. Again this heavier feeling is due to the majority of weight being toward the end and particularly if the bat is end-loaded. To swing at the ball from this position requires a large overcoming of inertia of the weight of the bat.

Hitting experts refer to this pre-swing phenomenon as the unweighting of the bat that comes prior to the actual swing. Others may see this action as the proverbial hitch in the swing or a timing mechanism which sometimes carries a bad connotation.

There are two basic ways to make the bat feel lighter before you swing:

- 1) Moving your bat to an almost vertical position unweights the bat,
- 2) When striding forward into the ball with a weight transfer; this also unweights the bat as it's in motion moving forward toward the pitcher.

Understand that a batter can start in the flat behind the head bat position as long as when during the pre-swing the bat is tipped up toward a vertical position. This action will make the bat feel lighter during the batter's windup motion. The pre-swing movement makes the bat feel lighter due to the center of mass of the bat being brought closer to your body when it's in the vertical position.

Here's a real life example to help understand how the bat feels heavier when the barrel is held horizontally: Try holding and extending a straw broom out in front of your body while gripping it from the end of the handle. Then ask a friend to place a small brick on the broom's straw area while you're still holding the broom. You'll get a real sense of the extra weightiness than just holding the brick in your hand.

When taking your swing try and create a rhythm by wagging the bat around and moving it to nearly a vertical position.

This action is performed as you wind up and deliver the bat to the incoming ball. Also, don't step away from your hands when you stride, but let your hands travel with your body toward the pitcher. This technique also is putting the bat in motion overcoming stationary inertia.

Remember, a stationary holding position of the bat without the pre-swing activity will make it much more difficult to get the bat up to your maximum bat speed as you're battling the bat's inertia properties. Performing this pre-swing action and technique will allow you to actually swing faster as you free up the dead weight of the bat. Increasing bat speed will add exit speed to your hits making for more base hits and long bombs.

So, if you want to swing faster, you must free up the barrel by wagging it like in golf before address and bringing it to near vertical during the pre-swing. The purpose here is to get your bat moving before you begin your body rotation which begins after the front foot has landed. We don't want to begin the swing to the ball from a complete bat standstill which will result in a slower swing to the ball.

Happy hitting.

HOF: Littlejohn, McLamb, Nevis, Ahal Elected

Don Brooks, SSUSA national director, says that Boone “has over the years, not only as a player, but also as a manager, has continually demonstrated a sincere love, knowledge, and above all, the respect for the game.”

Bob Gregorich Player

The Henderson, Nev., resident began playing Senior Softball with teams such as Venture Bank and Ruth Realty.

In 2005 Bob moved to Las Vegas and began playing with Tharaldsons, Las Vegas Elks, Arizona Heat, Las Vegas Pirates and Stark Street Pizza. Bob also managed from 2007 thru 2014 the Las Vegas Elks, Las Vegas Pirates and the Stark Street Pizza teams winning several national championships.

“Bob was a key member of the LVSSA Board who served on the steering committee that combined the LVSSA and SSUSA for both the very successful WMC and the Southwest Championships,” said Terry Hennessy, SSUSA’s CEO.

Russ Curtis says of Bob, “Bob is the ultimate team player, who can play any position, and will bat anywhere in the lineup without complaint. He is a .700-.750 hitter that runs for other players.”

Rick Littlejohn Player

The Olympia, Wash., resident has played senior softball for 14 years starting with the Ruth Realty team in 2000.

Jim Hornus, past manager of the Ruth team says of Rick, “I’ve had the opportunity of playing with and against Rick many times. He is the total ballplayer, offense and defense, he can do it all. As a coach, you couldn’t ask for a better team player. He’s always willing to give up playing time so others can get in the game, doesn’t care where he bats in the lineup.”

Joe Franco says of Rick, The Ruth teams he played on were among the best in the Northwest, and several won World Championships.

James McLamb Player

He has played senior softball for 17 years starting with Dan Smith Softball out of California. He then played with the Florida Crush. He continued his Senior Softball career with the Carolina Cobras.

In 2005 James joined

Countrywide, which evolved into Turn-Two and then Hamel’s Superior Softball.

Ron Sandy, a former coach, said “James is an outstanding pitcher who has complete command of the game when he is on the mound. He is an extremely skilled defensive pitcher.” Bruce Springstead, having played with him and against him said that James has a way of making the game look simple and always has an encouraging word of advice to make to improve the play of his teammates.

Don Clatterbough points out that James is a devoted player and team leader. James exhibits sportsmanship, character, and class in all aspects of his life that he leads by his Christian example.

Bill Nevis Player

The Elk Grove, Calif., resident has played senior softball for 21 years, starting with the Sacramento Golden Seniors.

He played his first World Championship in Salt Lake City in 1997, where he was voted best Offensive and Defensive Player.

Over the years Bill has played on numerous teams and has won All Tournament awards and championships. In 2014 and 2015, while playing with the Omen 70 team, Bill won back to back Senior Softball Triple Crowns.

Tom Avery, manager of the Omen 70 team, says of Bill, “Not only does he have a great glove, but also is one of our leading hitters. He is the player you build a team around and wish you had a whole bunch more of Nevis’s on your team.”

Tom Best says of Bill, “Bill is considered one of the best, if not the best, shortstop in 70 senior play. He has great range and a powerful throwing arm.”

Bob Ahal Pioneer Player

“Bob Ahal has been a great example of some of the very best aspects of senior ball, sportsmanship and dedication to developing the sport. He has been a driving force for our sport in Arizona,” says Terry Hennessy, National Senior Softball Hall of Fame delegate.

“Bob’s commitment to the sport is evident in his contributions to senior softball over a 25+ year career as a player and team manager. Many players participate solely for the enjoyment of the sport. Few, however, enjoy a 25-years career and fewer yet take on the responsibility and commitment that Bob has during this time,” says delegate Greg Maas.

“I have had the opportunity to play as a teammate with Bob on several National Championship teams and he always delivered including the 2009 Triple Crown in the 70 Major Plus Division, said Harry Heller, a member of the 2014 Hall of Fame Class.

Mel Schiebel Pioneer Player

Schiebel has played senior softball for 18 years and currently is with the Sun City Sidewinders.

He was a softball ambassador to Germany in 2002 and has been recognized in various tournaments with 31 medals, five World Series rings and two watches. He has played for several teams in Arizona and helped raise $252,000 to build a club house and scorers booth, helped acquire building materials recruited sponsors to raise money for league operations.

His manager said Mel is a consistent .650 - .750 hitter and "most of his hits are for extra bases. He has an uncanny ability to find the gaps. He is a clutch player and has won more games for us than any other player."

Roger Williams Pioneer Player

He has played Senior Softball since 1988 and his fellow players and managers note that he "has dedicated his entire senior life to excellence in senior softball. He has played with teams from Oregon, Nevada and California.

Here's what his fellow players and managers have to say:

"His level of perfection on the field is not obtained by chance or assumption. Roger has earned it by the way he plays the game.

As an opponent, I marveled at Roger's skills on the diamond. He was consistently on-base, generally after extra-base hits earned through his speed and heads-up alertness. Now as a teammate, I agree he falls in the category of a "five-tool" player. He has no weaknesses.

More than anything else, Roger is a team player, always positive, and fun to be around. He will bring even more class to the NSSHoF."

Financial Choices Change With Age

By Jack Sirard

If there's one thing that becomes abundantly clear as we get older, time just seems to fly by. And while we're still in September, it won't be long before the holidays are here. And then we'll be rapidly rolling into 2017.

The first of the year is usually the time when people start thinking about their finances ... and all the changes they'll be making. But as often as not, they lose their momentum as they recuperate from the holidays.

For that reason, I think now is a good time to take a look at your investments and to have a plan of action ready once the new year arrives.

The first thing I'd look at is your 401(k) investment plan. Whether you're still working or not, your 401(k) needs annual attention. I don't know how many people I've talked to over the years that opened a 401(k) at work, made some thoughtful investment decisions and have never made another change.

Some of these people have several hundred thousand dollars in their plans, but haven't made any change whatsoever in 20 years or more. The danger here, investment advisers say, is that while those investment choices you made way back when were good for you at the time, you're a LOT older now and likely don't want to be in the same investments today. If, for instance, you decided to allocate 60 to 80 percent of your 401(k) to stock funds when you were 45, you most likely want to take a far more conservative approach now that you're 65.

So what you need to do is to look at your last statement and see exactly where you

Why We Do It

This month the largest senior single-sport tournament in America begins in Las Vegas.

The LVSSA/SSUSA World Masters Championships will attract 15,000 players and their friends and families from almost every state in The Union.

This production has taken the better part of the year to plan and will take thousands of hours of labor to implement.

Why do we do it?

The first response from teams paying $745 entry fees is usually, "It's all about the money."

Wrong. Very wrong.

Certainly there is a return of monetary investment for both LVSSA and SSUSA, but it not the driving force behind this event.

The driving force is the determination of each association – LVSSA and SSUSA – to produce the biggest and best tournament in the sport.

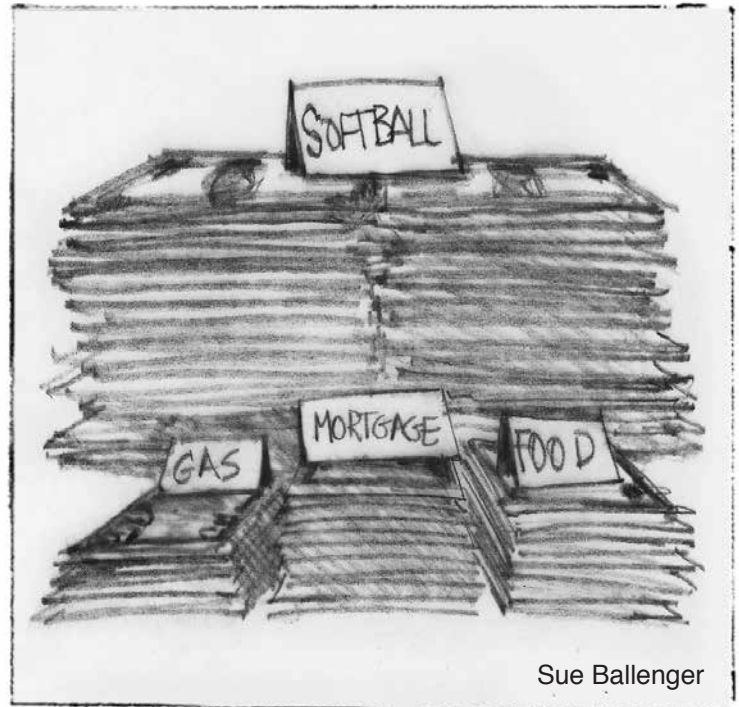

Why?

It's not simple pride, although we are very proud of the World Masters Championships.

A tournament of this size attracts national and international attention for the sport, which helps grow the sport throughout America and the world.

We love this game and want to see it expand so that every senior has the opportunity to play.

So it boils down to love of the game.

Sue Ballenger

Keeping Life in Perspective

And we would like to thank every player and fan who participates in this event and helps spread the word about the sport we love.

Awareness + Prevention = CAN-Sirs Team

As we begin the fall season, CAN-Sirs had only moderate success in promoting our team and expanding our message. We partnered with SSUSA for the CAL-Cup and entered the Western Open. That was pretty much our season.

My illness during this year was part of the reason for the lack of pursuing our mission. I was rushed to the hospital during the 2015 Western Open, but after several hospitalizations and tests, nothing was discovered. I was experiencing loss of balance and sudden paralysis from the waist down.

Doctors thought I was having seizures and I was prescribed four different medications which as it turns out only caused me further problems. After being taken off the meds I have not had any further physical problems.

The legacy of the drugs put me in a state of apathy that along with depression, I was unable to function. Since we are a small organization run by my wife Vicki and I we were unable to pursue our mission very well.

I want to thank Gil Correa for taking on the task of managing the team. Greg Leur-gans was helpful in recruiting players and Denny Weisgerber took care of the jerseys and equipment. I especially want to thank Terry Hennessy who quarterbacked the whole season for the CAN-Sirs.

I wish to thank our friends for their continued support and to apologize that I was unable to move forward with the CAN-Sirs awareness and prevention programs.

It is still our intention to proceed with the CA-Sirs mission and with your continued help, we can succeed.

But it worked. Everyone started laughing and they offered me the bottle. I begged off the alcohol, but we got through the game in subsequent good humor.

Although I used a smidge of poetic license, this actually happened. And the drunken wives' team won the game. The moral of the story is — whatever your wife tells you, it is.

Youth: Brain Is Key

ing healthier, happier lives.

What is the secret?

The elixir appears to contain large measures of exercise, good diet and a dash of just the right genes.

Surprisingly, the genes associated with longer life have less to do with bodily functions than with human thought, according to the Wellderly Study by the Scripps Translational Science Institute (STSI) in San Diego.

"We looked at entire genome, trying to find sites that are statistically different. The sites that showed big difference were linked to cognitive functions," said Ali Torkamani, a STSI researcher.

"The brain-body connection could be a direct biological link, or it could be the case that because the brain is functioning well, you take better care of yourself," said Torkamani.

The Scripps research into aging well has become increasingly important as the population as a whole lives longer.

The average American is living almost 30 years longer than a century ago. In 1912, the average life expectancy was 51.5 years. In 2012, the most recent study, the average American lived to be 78.8 years old.

But living longer in itself has created misery for many elderly Americans suffering from chronic diseases as they age, which has been the impetus for a raft of research similar to the Wellderly study.

And those studies are increasingly trying to find the secret of a rare breed – like Rawlings playing for Southwest Stars in the 2014 WMC.

91-year-old John Rawlings.

Rawlings pitches and plays second base three days a week in San Diego, including Saturdays with "the youngsters in their early 60s."

"I come from a family of old people," said Rawlings. "My aunt lived to be 110, another lived to be 109, and my brother is 99."

Rawlings, who was part of the Scripps Wellderly study, plays rover and shortstop for the 85 Southwest Stars 85+ team.

"The genetics are there, but keeping yourself in shape is very important," he said. To Rawlings, that means playing ball on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Diet is a different story.

"I'm an old farmer, I like corn on the cob and steak," said Rawlings, who was inducted into the National Senior Softball Hall of Fame in 2009. "Stay away from sugar, but salt is OK...really it is just important to have a rounded diet."

Rawlings has earned the respect of both researchers and the many in San Diego for his positive attitude and senior softball playing ability. Fittingly, he will be throwing out the first pitch for the Padres when they play the Diamondbacks on Sept. 20.

The Best and Worst Cities to Retire

Softball News Report

As researchers study the reasons behind long, healthy lives, it is interesting to look at where seniors retire.

Some states are not surprising: Florida not only has one of the highest densities, but three of the top four "Best Cities to Retire" are in Florida.

Orlando is at the top of WalletHub's list, which judged cities based on affordability, quality of life, health care and availability of recreational opportunities.

Tampa rated the Number 2 spot and Miami was Number 4. (Scottsdale, Ariz., rated Number 3).

The American Community Survey which ranked where the overall 65+ population in America lived, contained some surprises. Seniors were not all flocking to the South. In addition to Florida, the highest densities of seniors were in West Virginia and Maine.

The American Community Survey showed where most seniors lived, but most studies have not rated where the most healthy seniors live.

One indication of where the population of healthy, active seniors live can be found by studying where most senior softball players live (See Charts on Page 1).

Using that measurement, California is – by far – the Eden of senior softball, with almost three times more senior softball players than the next state, Florida.

Florida, Arizona and Texas come in second, third and fourth and have nearly the same number of senior players.

At the other end of the spectrum, with the fewest players, are Germanay, Maine and the Yukon Territory.

Best Cities to Retire

1. Orlando, FL
2. Tampa, FL
3. Scottsdale, AZ
4. Miami, FL
5. Sioux Falls, SD
6. Las Vegas, NV
7. Cape Coral, FL
8. Atlanta, GA
9. Minneapolis, MN
10. Los Angeles, CA

Worst Cities to Retire

1. Fontana, CA
2. Rancho Cucamonga, CA
3. Bakersfield, CA
4. Wichita, KS
5. Detroit, MI
6. Aurora, IL
7. Chula Vista, CA
8. Newark, NJ
9. Worcester, MA
10. Providence, RI

Sirard: It's Time for Study

are putting your money, both new funds going in and your old funds that you've had for some time. For seniors, it's important to know just how much risk you are willing to take and if you're 50 percent or more in equities, you might want to move some of your money to fixed-income investments that should have less risk and less market fluctuation.

It's important to make such changes...if needed...when you want to do it and not when the stock market suddenly moves sharply in one direction or the other.

And while you are looking over your 401(k), you should also be looking at any other investment funds that you own. You want to make your investment decisions in correlation with each other and not treat them as totally isolated from each other.

For instance, if you have $250,000 in your 401(k) and it's all invested in stocks, you might be OK if you have the same amount of money invested in fixed-income securities in your regular investment account. If you truly want a 50-50 mix of the two investment strategies. However, I would think most investors would feel safer having each account in the balance they want just in case something goes wrong.

If you decide that your old investment strategy no longer works for you, it's a nice quiet time of year when you can carefully go over your investment options. You have plenty of time to make an appointment with your financial adviser to let them know that you want to make some changes and to see what they recommend.

Moving money around quickly is never a good strategy. You want to take your time to see exactly what you might want to do and to be able to study any new investment options as well as to take a careful look at how your current investments have done.

One additional thing to consider is what retirees can expect from Social Security for 2017. The experts are warning that if inflation continues to be low, there may be little or no automatic increase in monthly retirement and disability payments.

The Social Security Act provides for an automatic boost in benefits if inflation as measured by what's called the Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners increases.

If you'll recall, last year the Social Security Administration didn't give an annual cost of living increase due to low inflation rates for the first time since 2010. While Social Security benefits have increased by 3.9 percent a year since 1975, they've only gone up 2.3 percent since 2000.

SSUSA International Tours presents: The 2017 Alpine Fairytale Tour June 22nd – July 4th, 2017

Don't miss this magical opportunity to explore the natural beauty, famous architectural wonders, quaint shops and fabulous music of Bavaria, Innsbruck, Salzburg, and wonderful Vienna – and, of course, there will be softball tournaments.

After visiting the Bavarian capital of Munich and watching the Glockenspiel, we scale the Alps in our luxury motorcoach to Neuschwanstein – the famous Fairytale Castle that inspired Walt Disney.

Our adventure is just starting as we visit the amazing alpine city of Innsbruck and view the spectacular vistas from Hitler's Eagle's Nest retreat.

We head to Salzburg through the land that "Sound of Music" made famous and the city where Mozart was born. Then we are off to the fabulous Melk Abbey, one of the most beautiful abbeys in Europe that has stood since 1089.

Our final stop is Vienna, where we will be immersed in the culture of one of the most memorable cities in Europe before taking a cruise on the Danube River. Our farewell dinner, fittingly, will be in the historic wine village of Grinzing. And, of course, the main feature of the Tour is softball. In Munich, we'll play the Bavarian Championships against some spirited German teams sponsored by the Freising Grizzlies and have a chance to meet them during a players party on Saturday afternoon.

The last weekend of the Tour, we will compete in the Vienna Classic, sponsored by the largest softball/baseball club in Austria called the Home Runners. A special event Saturday night will include music provided by the Austrian club's own excellent band.

Our Alpine Fairytale Tour will create memories – and friendships – that will last a lifetime. Don't miss your chance to join the adventure!

2016 WORLD MASTERS CHAMPIONSHIPS:

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA

Largest Senior Tournament to Grow

Softball News Report

LAS VEGAS – The largest senior softball tournament in the world returns here for the fifth straight year – the Las Vegas Senior Softball Association and Senior Softball-USA World Masters Championships.

Last year, teams from 42 states (including Alaska and Hawaii), from four Canadian provinces and Guam competed in Senior Softball’s largest tournament ever.

This year, WMC officials are estimating that about 550 teams again will flock to this gambling mecca.

The 550 teams in the World Masters Championships translate into 15,000 people who will infuse $22 million into the local economy.

The numbers are remarkable: 1,800 games over the 13-day event, with 90 umpires, 30 directors, and more than 200 other volunteers and vendors

“It is our pleasure to welcome the more than 550 teams that will make the trip to Las Vegas to compete in the Senior Softball World Masters Championships,” said Pat Christenson, president of Las Vegas Events. “We hope that all of the participants and fans have a great experience at the ballparks and enjoy everything that Las Vegas has to offer.”

Las Vegas Events, the Title Sponsor of the 2016 World Masters Championships, has been instrumental in providing the necessary support to create the largest senior softball tournament in the world.

Rogers Welcomes Midwest Championships

Softball News Report

ROGERS, Ark. – The 2016 Midwest Championships, previously held in Kansas and Illinois, moved to Arkansas for the first time at Rogers Regional Sports Park.

Forty-six teams competed, with the 65 and over divisions starting on July 12-14, and the 50-60 age divisions concluding the championships, July 15-17.

Mother Nature reared its ugly head in Rogers causing delays and postponements; however, hard work by the grounds crew allowed the tournament to continue without a hitch.

Ten teams would go on to earn a TOC invitation.

Here are the winners:

KC Classics (Men's 50 Major), Iowa Demons 50 (Men's 50AAA).

MW Driving School (Men's

55 Major), Mayhem (Men's 55AAA)
